Title: Proprietary purchase: Historic artifact: General Thomas Alexander Harris' sword

Description: The state desires to purchase a one-of-a-kind sword for the Lexington historical site. This sword was given to Gen. Thomas Alexander Harris by the officers of the 2nd Division of the Missouri State Guard for his role in the Battle of Lexington, Missouri, September 18 -20, 1861. During that battle, General Harris' men captured the Anderson House and employed the tactic of "rolling hemp bales" to secure victory for the Missouri State Guard. Much of the land over which Harris' men fought is now part of the Battle of Lexington State Historic Site administered by the Missouri Department of Natural Resources, Division of State Parks (DSP). DSP wants to purchase this sword because of its association with Gen. Harris and intends to use it as part of the interpretive programming at the site's visitors' center.
